Bethel Inn fined $10,000 by state for silting brook

The Board of Environmental Protection, meeting in Augusta last Wednesday, unanimously—and without discussion—approved a fine of $10,000 for permit violations caused by construction of the Bethel Inn's expanded golf course. The fine had been recommended by the DEP staff and the attorney general's office and was paid by the Inn.

Inn owner Dick Raso said he paid the fine but questioned its fairness. "We were appalled at the dimension of the fine... If the fine was on the basis of what damage was actually sustained, there would be no fine."

An inspection performed a half-year after the siltation incident by environmental consultant Charles Ritz, on behalf of the Inn, found Hill Brook quite normal. "If I had not been informed that there had been an erosion incident, I would have no reason to suspect that one had occurred," wrote the consultant, "and certainly not one that would have any significant effect on the capability of the brook to support fish or fisheries."

As reported in The Citizen last year, the violations took place in October 1987, during the course of a heavy rainstorm. Exposed soils ran towards the brook, overtopping sediment ponds that had been dug, and wound up silting the brook and forming a number of sandy deltas.

Inn officials quickly took steps to minimize the situation, and then, following DEP orders, removed the sediment that had formed the deltas.

Sunday River re-routes sewage after DEP staff inspects septic

John Nims, of Augusta, is an occasional skier at Sunday River Ski Resort, and when he was going up the South Ridge chair Friday, Feb. 24, something didn't smell right. "I was riding up the lift and noticed an odor that didn't seem right to me," he said.

When he went to his job at the state Department of Environmental Protection the next week, he notified Don Albert, of the agency's Water Quality Division. He, in turn, notified the Health Engineering Division and on March 8 a small state delegation, together with Newry's plumbing inspector, went to Sunday River to check on sewage problems.

Mr. Albert said they checked three areas: the septic system serving South Ridge, the septic system serving the Fall Line condo area, and Barker Brook. He said at the South Ridge septic they saw evidence that there had been a problem. A Sunday River employee confirmed that fact, and said the septic had been pumped to the sewer plant.

In the Fall Line area, Mr. Albert said, "There was a sewage outbreak on the surface."

The state officials took samples near both septic systems as well as from Barker Brook. The results confirmed their original observation that the Fall Line sample was in fact untreated sewage. The other two samples—from the South Ridge area and from the brook—showed no significant wastes.

The results were reported to skateway officials who, in the meanwhile, had taken steps to pump the Fall Line septic to the sewer plant and more closely monitor the South Ridge septic system. They also promised, Mr. Albert said, to dig up the ground around the Fall Line septic this spring and locate the source of the sewage outbreak in that area.

While the earlier condos and restaurants had their own septic systems, the more recent developments

Newry selectmen review skiway-area water tests

At their regular meeting Tuesday, the Newry Board of Selectmen learned that water tests the town had had conducted at and around Sunday River Ski Resort have all shown normal results.

Selectman Roger Hanscom said the town had hired a private company to conduct the tests in order to determine if sewage problems at the skiway were contaminating local waters.

Mr. Hanscom said the company conducted numerous tests in the area and found no signs of sewage contamination.

In other business, Fire Chief Virgil Conkright told the selectmen the tank truck the fire department recently received from the Maine Forest Service is now ready for operation. The truck, which can haul 2,000 gallons of water, will serve as a tanker for the time being, but the fire department hopes to eventually mount a pump on it.

The selectmen have recently made the following appointments to town commit-

According to survey, most Telstar seniors have used alcohol/drugs

Nine out of 10 Telstar Regional High School seniors have imbibed alcoholic beverages, and more than half have smoked marijuana, according to a survey presented to the SAD #44 Board of Directors last week.

The survey, which was conducted during the past school year, also found that two out of three 8th-graders in the middle school had tried alcohol and one in five had experimented with marijuana.

The figures for alcohol and marijuana usage among 12th-graders are very similar to national averages. (No national figures were available for 8th-graders.)

"Nothing in the report really surprises me," said Substance Abuse Coordinator Louise Chapman, who presented the report to the board. "The problem is in the community," she said, "but we have to deal with the effects of the problem in the school."

The survey itself was a pencil-and-paper questionnaire that the students answered anonymously. Ms. Chapman said students are generally very cooperative and give honest answers on such tests as long as they are sure no one will ever link them to their answers.

The survey also included a number of internal checks to weed out responses from students who were confused, exaggerating or who didn't believe their answers would remain anonymous. The responses from these students were not included in the final tabulations.

The result of the survey, Ms. Chapman said, should be considered to be very reliable.

According to those results, two-thirds of the seniors and nearly one-quarter of the 8th-graders had used alcohol in the days immediately prior to filling out the questionnaire.

Fifteen percent of the seniors and 3 percent of the 8th-graders said they used marijuana during that period.

The survey also analyzed the patterns of drug use among the two classes and found that 6 percent of the seniors were "at risk" because of their heavy use of multiple drugs, 2 percent were at risk because of heavy marijuana use, and 7

Speeders beware! Bethel buys radar

The Bethel Police Department moved into the world of high-tech law enforcement Monday night when the Board of Selectmen authorized the purchase of a radar gun. Police Chief Eric Wight said afterwards, "If they hadn't, I would have bought it myself—and that's the God's honest truth."

Chief Wight said his department needed a radar in order to have some means of getting drivers to slow down going through town. "It's like they're going through Mayberry RFD," he told the selectmen. "They just laugh at us."

He said the worst offenders were the cars with skis on top and radar detectors on the dash. He said the only way to slow them down is to make their radar detectors light up.

Norm Clanton, a part-time deputy, said, "Radar gives you credibility." He also told the board that motorists given speeding tickets based on radar information rarely bother going to court to dispute the facts. "The rate of conviction is very high," he said.

Town Manager Rodney Lynch pointed out the two worst areas plagued by speeders are West Bethel and the Sunday River Road. Mr. Clanton added Church Street to that list.

The town manager said "Presently the primary means of catching speeders is by following a vehicle a certain distance. A radar gun would provide a more scientific means for catching speeders."

Only three selectmen were at the meeting—Selectmen Arthur Gilbert and Victor Coudridge were absent—and only two seemed really sold on the idea. Selectwoman Pat Doon moved that the Town purchase a used unit being offered by the Paris Police Department for $400. The unit is a 1982 model that Paris wants to get rid of because they've recently purchased a far better model.

The $400 used one was recommended by the chief and the town manager, since a new unit sells for about $1,300. The money is available in the Police Department's equipment account, which had no purchases this year.

Selectman Peter Haines was not convinced that a used radar gun would serve the town very well. And Chairman Arlan Jordrey tended to agree, although he thought it was a start. "But I'm sure we'll be back in a few months to buy a new one."

Mrs. Doon was of the opinion that "It might spell us for a year or so." In the end, Mr. Haines unenthusiastically seconded the motion, and the vote to purchase the used radar gun was unanimous.

In other matters at Monday night's selectmen's meeting, the board voted unanimously to hire a consultant to help the Town get approval for its planned industrial park. Town officials were surprised when they were told by the state

Volunteers are a necessary part in educating youth

A successful volunteer program is an important ingredient for any school system. The Bethel Bisbee and Cresco Park Elementary schools have boasted such a program for several years.

The V.I.P. (Volunteer Involvement Program) currently is working to create a strong school/community partnership locally. Presently, there are 26 men and women who volunteer in the classroom on a weekly basis. They are: Allison Aloisio, Cheryl Angevine, Jean Bass, Linda Caron, Pat Donovan, Becky Gilbert, Marguerite Graham, Nancy Grover, Sue Harvey, Terry Howard, Linda and Bob Howe, Virginia Keniston, Denise Kozemchak, Diana Nadeau, Danna Nickerson, Patti Parsons, Wendy Penley, Susan Phillips, Becky Shaw, Althea Stevens, Gail Sykes, Marilyn Swan, Kelly Vascik, Cheryl Young, Nancy Young and Robin Zinchuk.

These dedicated volunteers serve in a variety of ways: listening to a child read, assisting and instructing students at a computer, typing and publishing stories, writing down stories that children tell, conferring with students while assisting in writing workshops, managing share circles, giving one-to-one help in math, reading, or language skills, providing assistance for C.A.P., or lending an extra hand for arts and crafts projects.

Although the education of our children is entrusted to professional educators,

Gilead Town Meeting to consider growth ordinances and terms of office for selectmen Getting started on growth control and changing the terms of office of the town's selectmen are expected to be the major issues facing Gilead Town Meeting—which meets this Saturday, at 7 p.m., in the town hall.

The Gilead Planning Board has recommended that Town Meeting approve ordinances covering building regulations, lot size requirements, and another setting up a fee schedule for building activities.

Planning Board Chairman Jim Monahan said the new regulations are a first step toward developing a comprehensive plan, which state law will require the town to have in place by 1993.

Voters will also be asked to change the terms of office for the town's selectmen. Currently three selectmen are elected each year to serve coinciding one-year terms.

Under the proposed change, only one selectman will be elected each year, and he or she will serve a three-year term. If Town Meeting approves the change it will take effect next year. At that time voters will be asked to elect selectmen to terms of one, two, and three years. As each of these terms expires, the new

Easter services set for Bethel area residents

On Good Friday, March 24, the United Methodist Church will be open from noon to 3 p.m. for quiet meditation. Area ministers will be present to lead in psalms and prayers at the half-hours.

At 7 p.m., a community Good Friday service will be held at the West Parish Congregational Church. This will include a brief chancel drama, "Meditation for Masks and Voices," featuring seven women of the Bible. An offering to support the work of the Bethel Area Clergy Association will be received. Those willing to sing in a combined choir for the occasion are asked to rehearse at 6:15 p.m.

An Easter Sunrise Service will be held at the top of Paradise Hill at 7 a.m., led by area ministers. A pancake breakfast will follow, served at the West Parish Congregational Church, from 7:30 to 8:30, by the church's Pilgrim Fellowship.

The public is invited to all of these events.

Woodstock voters to decide on new $125,000 garage

Woodstock Town Meeting, next Tuesday evening, will be asked to authorize town officials to spend up to $125,000 for the construction of a combined town garage and fire department facility.

Construction of the new building would not require the town to raise new taxes this year, Town Manager Vern Maxfield said. The building would be paid for by taking $94,078 from the Building Fund Reserve already built up by the town, taking $22,541 from tree growth penalties, and adding the proceeds from the sale of the former stump dump property and storage building.

If approved, the new garage will be located at the site of the old Woodstock School, which was recently demolished.

The town's building committee has also recommended that the former school gymnasium be torn down to help make room for the site. That decision will also be put before Town Meeting.

The selectmen have recommended that voters approve a town budget of $387,794 for the current year, with $313,159 to be raised by taxes and the balance to come from surplus and block grant funds.

The amount to be raised from taxes is down 9 percent from last year. Even with the school district assessment scheduled to go up by $26,000 and with the loss of valuation for the former Stowell Wood Products mill, the town manager said he hopes to be able to bring the town's mill rate (currently $20 per $1,000 of assessed valuation) down a little this year.

George Hooper, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, said he will propose that voters cut the proposed budget further by voting down an article authorizing $5,000 to be raised for interest expenses.

The town made approximately $39,000 in interest last year, Mr. Hooper said, enough to cover the $13,000 in tax anticipation note interest expenses and still net $26,000.

Other articles before Town Meeting include allocating $65,000 from the highway block grant to complete hot-topping work on Rumford Avenue, putting aside $8,044 to begin rebuilding the Highway Department Truck Reserve Account and $5,000 toward the Fire Department truck reserve.

Voters will also be asked to approve a new outdoor advertising ordinance, a number of modifications to its shoreland zoning ordinance and minimum lot area ordinance.

They will also be asked to authorize the town to set up its own assessment review board—in effect, taking the assessment appeal authority for the town out of the hands of the Oxford County Commissioners.

Voters must also decide what to do with the bell from the former school building. According to Mr. Maxfield, the two most likely options are to leave the bell in the town office—where it is now—or move it to the Woodstock Historical Society.

Selectman Hooper, who is seeking reelection to a second three-year term, is being challenged by David Clukey.

Mr. Hooper told The Citizen he was amazed at the pace of change in the town over the past three years, but also proud of the way the town had handled the challenge posed by that change.

He pointed to the establishment of an effective town manager system of administration, development of the municipal complex, computerization of town financial records, and cooperation with the Town of Greenwood on solid waste and recycling projects.

"The emphasis in the next three years will be on making sure that all these systems operate as effectively as possible," he said, "and seeing that the town is run in a professional, businesslike manner."

Mr. Clukey is a local real estate broker, whose background also includes work in the construction and retail trades. "I think it's important that young people get involved in town government,"

Opinions

When money talks, Jock listens

Mainers interested in the clean-up of the state's rivers were dealt a setback last week when Governor John McKernan's office announced that it would first ask the big polluters what they thought of the idea. At issue was the recommendations made by staffers in the Department of Environmental Protection that paper mills polluting the Androscoggin and other major rivers be required to clean up their acts.

The governor's office, apparently at the request of the paper companies, announced it would defer action on the DEP's recommendations until the paper mills could determine how much the recommended cleanup would cost each mill. Administration officials said the DEP report on discoloration of the rivers from mill discharges failed to provide cost data on the recommended cleanup. In fact, the report did indeed include such data.

The problem, according to DEP sources, is simply that the governor is unwilling to tackle the paper companies.

On the other hand, the governor is perfectly willing to impose the full weight of state authority on small entities such as Bethel. Bethel is being forced to undertake over $1 million in repairs to its ailing sewer plant, which—admittedly—is polluting the Androscoggin. If the Town of Bethel had as much clout in the governor's office as Boise, or James River, or IP, you can be sure there would be years of study and cost analysis and hemming and hawing before the entire matter was ultimately forgotten.

While no cries of outrage have been heard from local legislators, the Lewiston-Auburn legislative delegation is outraged, and rightly so. Rep. John Nutting (D-Leeds) said, "I want some action." And because none was forthcoming from the administration, he—together with Lewiston-Auburn co-sponsors—proposed legislation that would, basically, implement the DEP's recommendations.

Nutting's bill is expected to get a hearing before the Natural Resources Committee April 5. Bethel area residents concerned with the water quality of the Androscoggin would do well to make their views known to that committee.

To the Editor:

Maine advocates of purchasing power from Hydro-Quebec are working now in an effort to revive the Central Maine Power Co. agreement with CMP and the Maine Public Utilities Commission. Hydro-Quebec's potential sale to CMP of 200 to 300 megawatts of power are secondary. Hydro-Quebec eagerly anticipates the completion of a planned 2000MW transmission line to the completion of the initial 1000MW converter station at Jay so Quebec power can flow into Southern New England.

Hydro-Quebec undoubtedly will permit some adjustments in its agreement with CMP as long as its inflated price for power is maintained intact. From Quebec's point of view the Maine sales price must remain unaltered, as a reduction of price in the CMP agreement in Maine would mean the Quebec utility would also be subject to an automatic reduction in the cost of power for the 500MW agreement now being negotiated with Vermont and the 800MW agreement with New York. A reduction of a half-cent in these potential agreements would mean a loss to H-Q of over $100 million annually for the life of the contracts.

Hydro-Quebec is keenly aware of the urgent need for power south of its border. Quebec is trying to finalize contracts that will leave the power consumers of New England and New York paying the cost of the development of the James Bay power resources and transmission to market. At the end of the contracts with the New England utilities, Quebec will realize its goal of possessing all this low-cost power for the next 75 years—the remaining life of the hydro plant.

This was demonstrated in a recent news item from the Guy Gannett News Service which quoted Jacques Guerevont, vice-president of external markets for Hydro-Quebec, as stating:

"The contract prices for power to Maine is based chiefly from the cost CMP would incur in generating the electricity itself rather than Hydro-Quebec's cost to produce it."

Guerevont fails to mention that Hydro-Quebec itself made the estimate for the cost of power from a theoretical proxy coal-fired plant in Maine which established the inflated cost of 13 cents per kwh for power delivered to Jay, Maine.

Then, CMP negotiated this price of 13 cents per kwh downward to a levelized cost of 9.5 cents per kwh, delivered to Jay, in 1994 dollars. This was advertised as a bargain.

Mr. Guerevont did not even hint that, under the CMP agreement, the power consumers of New England would be paying a 100 percent markup for power at the border. Maine and other New England utilities, would have paid off the capital costs for two kilowatts of generation delivered to the border for each kilowatt purchased under the original contract for power.

Quebec would not only have the bonus of one free kilowatt of electricity for every kilowatt sold to New England during the contract period, but at the end of such contract for the next 75 years, Quebec inherits a "Pot of Gold." i.e., two kilowatts of capacity and related energy for each kilowatt originally purchased by the New England utilities; all this would be paid for by the power consumers of New England.

Quebec must be persuaded to recognize that New England's capital resources, used to build Quebec's power facilities, are equal in value to the province's hydro resource. Quebec must also realize that it is not entitled, at the end of a purchase agreement, to keep all of the low-cost power financed by the province to develop jobs and industrial expansion which, when carried to its ultimate under the Free Trade Act, would severely damage New England's economy.

Instead, Quebec must share this low-cost hydro power (paid for by the power consumers of New England) on a fair and square basis with the purchasing utilities.

Why wouldn't a negotiating utility insist upon getting a better deal?

The incentive to get a better deal is missing because the utility is negotiating a price to be paid with dollars from the pockets of the power consumers, not from the utility's own corporate funds. In fact, a CMP executive, cross-examined in the recently concluded hearings on Quebec power in Maine, stated that it was not the responsibility of his company to protect the economy of Maine—or New England. CMP's only responsibility is to buy power to serve its customers that was at a cost less than CMP believes it can provide for itself. Such power must also be reliable and dispatchable.

CMP's stand coincided with the position of the Maine PUC and the [State's] Public Advocate, which is that, under the law, they too are not responsible for long-term firm power from Quebec is greatly needed. As a prerequisite to signing a contract now for Quebec power, it must be mandated that Hydro-Quebec agrees to continue to provide the purchasing utility with at least 50 percent of the capacity purchased, including the related energy, for the remaining 75-year life of the Hydro-Quebec facilities.

To the Editor:

This is an invitation to anyone interested to come to Bethel weekends and holidays and watch the antics of some out-of-state drivers.

Please make sure you are near the intersection of Rt. 2 and the Sunday River Road from 8 to 10 a.m. or 4 to 6 p.m. You will then be able to enjoy being passed on solid lines, have cars running stops signs, and numerous other violations. Traffic on Rt. 2 west should proceed with caution as they may have to stop to avoid being hit.

Now that you have managed to avoid an accident at that site, travel east about 1½ miles and see if you can pass the Red Top without a fender-bender. Cars will exit there even if there are five or more cars heading their way. If you are in a line of traffic, make sure you pay attention because someone is going to turn without giving a signal.

Still alive and no accident or near accident? Watch out, Cross Street is just ahead. There you have the same problem as you do at the Red Top—cars turning without using a signal. The morning traffic thinks that STOP sign means yield, so watch out if you are heading east. Traffic in-town Bethel is not quite so hazardous, but I'm sure many of you have seen cars exiting from the IGA on to Main Street.

I recently had an interesting experience near Brown's Mobil. A car traveling east decided to do a U-turn on the highway, with at least five vehicles heading west. If it hadn't been for the quick thinking of the pickup behind me, there would have been a serious accident.

My question is: why isn't there any law enforcement around while all these antics are going on? I realize it is not possible to be everywhere at all times, but some of these places could be patrolled at busy times and then our out-of-state friends will realize the Bethel area does have law enforcement.

It has been rumored around Bethel that the town police are supposed to ignore certain areas and not look for violations. Could this really be true?

To the Editor:

The Maine Legislature, the citizen body responsible for making Maine's laws, has come under fire recently for being wasteful, inefficient, too big, and headed toward a full-time status. Critics have cited increased legislative staff, the growing cost of running the Legislature, and longer hours that lawmakers must spend in Augusta. And while no fingers have been pointed at any one party, a recent call by Republicans for a two-week recess was intended to give Maine citizens the impression that Democrats are at the root of the problem. Fortunately, the issue took a turn for the better when those same Republicans decided to support legislation introduced by Democrats calling for independent management studies of the legislative process to determine where, if possible, efficiency can be increased.

Their decision to work with Democrats to quickly move the legislation through the process signals the possibility of a better working relationship between the Democrats and Republicans. And it marks a good time to set the record straight regarding the many claims being made about the Legislature.

First, I cannot emphasize strongly enough the fact that I, and most members of the legislative leadership, vigorously oppose any movement toward a full-time Legislature. Maine has benefited from the time-honored and time-tested tradition of a part-time citizen Legislature. Our forefathers believed that the best laws are made by those who must go back to their own communities and live by them; that belief still holds true today. I and other lawmakers are committed to maintaining that tradition. With that commitment in mind, many of the criticisms leveled at the Legislature take on a new light.

Yes, the number of staff in the Legislature has increased by 30 over the past five years. I, and many others, are convinced that if we had not increased the staff by that much, however, we very well would have a full-time Legislature by now. The reality is that if staff is not increased to handle the growing number of complex issues facing state government, the amount of time lawmakers spend in Augusta handling those issues must be increased. Like it or not, we are facing a different set of circumstances than we did just 10 to 15 years ago.

Under the Reagan Administration, the federal government relinquished many of its responsibilities to the state governments, forcing them to develop the legislative expertise needed to handle the new responsibilities.

Increasingly complex issues require legislative action. They include property tax relief, workers' compensation, hospital and health care cost containment, rising liability insurance costs, and growth planning.

And the Legislature is continuing the necessary process of weaning itself from the Administration and outside interests. Fifteen years ago, most of the bills introduced into the Legislature were drafted by lobbyists and special interest groups—there was very little staff to do such work. By hiring more staff over the last two decades, the Legislature not only distanced itself from special, outside interests, it has further separated itself from the administrative branch of government, as the Maine Constitution requires.

Before critics become too strident about the cost of the Legislature and the increases in staff, they should keep in mind:

• During the first two years of the McKernan Administration, the total number of state employees increased by

To the Editor:

It is disturbing to realize that when Maine was a predominantly agricultural state it had over four million acres of farmland. Gradually much of this land has disappeared or become unavailable for agricultural purposes to the point that we now have something over one million acres left. Approximately 70 acres a day are disappearing or being changed to other purposes, lost to farming forever. Shopping centers, factories, parking lots, tract housing and the like are devouring Maine's agricultural land at an alarming rate.

And what do we get in most cases for this change? Ugly urban sprawl, that's what. A maze of plastic, glass, asphalt, neon signs and architecture of very dubious distinction has taken over where farms and open spaces were once the norm. At this rate, generations of the future will never know that Maine was once an agricultural state with large amounts of open land.

What has changed all this? The automobile has dictated fundamental changes in American life. Probably no better summation of this change has been composed than by the late Pulitzer Prize historian, Barbara Tuchman, in her book, "Practicing History." She writes after assessing the effects upon contemporary society of the nuclear threat and television:

Meanwhile we use incessantly that equally lethal weapon, the automobile, which kills 50,000 annually in the United States, not counting the thousands maimed—a self-inflicted Hiroshima every year. If one adds to the human casualties the land the automobile has destroyed by highways and parking lots, the pollution of air by its fumes, the horrors perpetrated upon the countryside by its gas stations, the choking of cities by its traffic, it can be reckoned easily the most destructive instrument ever devised by man. Yet at its inception it was a wonderful instrument of freedom that whirled people at exhilarating speeds and opened up new realms of movement and travel. Now it has become a monster of which every person needs one or more, usually twice the size and horsepower necessary for utility. The proliferation and evil effects could be controlled, but are not. Everyone suffers, but no one calls a halt.

Calling a halt may be the next step. The city of Los Angeles seems to be slowing the rest of us where the future lies in regard to the automobile. War is being waged by the state of California to gradually bring declared on it since its long-term unregulated effects are becoming increasingly apparent. No one will be able to breathe or move if the present course continues unabated.

A society built to serve the automobile with its parking lots, shopping centers, multi-lane expressways, etc., will—as Los Angeles nears the brink of paralysis—no longer work. We are not anywhere near the stage of things here in Maine, but the blueprint of the future is available for all to see in southern California. The consequences of America's long love affair with the automobile are becoming increasingly clear: the pace of centering our world on this direction is proving to be high.

To complicate matters, we have let our public transportation system slip badly. The process signals the possibility of a better working relationship between the Democrats and Republicans. And it marks a good time to set the record straight regarding the many claims being made about the Legislature.

education is the responsibility of the entire community. In our town there are men and women with ability, interest, and time, who may not be educators by profession but who contribute much to the learning of its boys and girls by serving the schools. These volunteers provide: 1) individual attention for children, 2) support for teachers, and 3) resources and skills from the community.

V.I.P. volunteers serve at the request of the school staff and work under the direction of school personnel. The ultimate purpose of every volunteer is to help meet the needs of our children.

In addition, about 40 other individuals serve as volunteers on special projects or on an as-needed basis: room parents, field trip chaperones, library aides, enrichment resources (such as cooking, foreign languages or science), coaches and assistants for soccer, skiing, and basketball programs.

Also, every Friday afternoon another team of volunteers gathers to serve as Olympians of the Mind advisors. The teachers of Ethel Beebe and Crescent Park School wish to salute and thank all these special volunteers for their positive participation and enhancement of the educational process.

happen in Maine.

Similarly, in some states, efforts have been taken to speed legislation through the process to reduce the legislative session. In Maine, extra time is often taken because in almost every case, legislation reflects the desires of our constituents, and those desires demand serious consideration.

Ultimately, the problem of making the Maine Legislature more efficient and less costly is not simple. Efficiency must be weighed against fairness; cost against autonomy. A study of the Legislature is not just welcome, it is necessary. It will allow us to pinpoint areas of weakness, unnecessary cost, and inefficiency. But it will then be up to lawmakers to eliminate the weaknesses without undermining the elements of Maine's Legislature that make it uniquely responsive to Maine's people.

Bethel Inn

complimented the Inn staff on their quick response to the erosion. "They were very cooperative."

It was this cooperative attitude, she said, that kept her department from recommending an even harsher fine. She said the fine should serve as a message that the agency is serious about the permits they give for large-scale construction projects. "The permits don't mean anything unless the people are doing what the permit requires," she said.

In the case for which the Inn was fined, the permit required, Ms. Pierce said, that the exposed soils should be seeded and mulched, and they were not. On the other hand, the construction team had dug sediment ponds that were not specified—but were allowable—in the permit.

Inn owner Dick Rasor said the ponds were dug to control siltation. "If we hadn't done it, if [the siltation] would've been twice as bad."

The Inn's project manager, John Laban, blamed the siltation on the unexpectedly heavy rain. He said the erosion-control plan approved by DEP was based on expectations of a once-in-25-year storm, with rain falling at the rate of 5 inches in 24 hours. "The rain that caused Mill Brook siltation fell at a rate nearly twice that," he said.

Ms. Pierce did not entirely concur with Mr. Laban's view. "We understand there was a heavy rainfall that was beyond their control, but also they didn't do everything they were supposed to do."

The DEP permit that the Inn violated was issued in May 1987 for the construction of the nine-additional holes for the golf course and for 40 condominium units, since built.

Construction of the Inn's expanded golf course should be completed this spring and early summer. "The full 18 holes are expected to be open July 1," Mr. Rasor said. The Inn also has approved plans to construct 20 more condominium units, although this plan was recently scaled back to permit building them in two phases—10 units in each phase.

at the skiway have been served by the new sewer plant, which discharges completely treated wastes into the Androscoggin River.

Skiway owner Les Otten said there are 10 septic systems in use on the mountain. The one that failed serves half of the Fall Line area, and doesn't serve the Fall Line Restaurant. He said the system's failure was due to a mechanical problem. "We'll find out in the springtime when we can dig it up."

He said the amount of sewage going into the system is closely watched. "The water meters clearly show that the system isn't being overloaded."

Nevertheless, because of the problem, the Fall Line sewer lines going to that septic will continue to run to the sewer plant until the ailing system can be inspected and repaired.

Mr. Otten noted that the DEP prefers in-ground disposal of septic wastes wherever possible, so that wastes can decay naturally with no risk of being dumped into rivers from ailing sewer plants.

While the DEP investigations were taking place, a Norway man—William Demers, a former skiway employee—was complaining to the federal government's Environmental Protection Agency and the governor's office about alleged sewage problems, plus alleged problems with fuel storage and salt storage.

The DEP was instructed by the governor's office to investigate these other allegations but found no problems, the DEP's Albert said.

Stories about the various investigations made the news late last week, both on Channel 13 and in the Boston Sunday Globe.

As for the DEP's John Nims, whose keen nose started the investigations, he said he plans to continue skiing at Sunday River.

white goods, brush and construction debris. They will not be allowed to dump household trash.

Newry will pay $7,000 for use of the landfill, while Hanover will pay $4,000. Oxford County, which had paid for use of the landfill by residents of Albany and Mason, has decided to discontinue that contract.

Bob and Linda Saunders were in to speak with the selectmen about what they contend is a continuing problem with illegal parking by customers of the Sudbury Inn. The Saunders informed the selectmen that they often have to chase Sudbury customers out of their parking lot, and twice this has resulted in violent reactions from the customers.

In one case, nearly two years ago, the two were assaulted and beaten. In the most recent incident, on the night of March 11, "Our car was vandalized after we had asked that Sudbury Inn patrons illegally parked on our property remove their cars."

The Saunders said their problem is the result of town officials not enforcing ordinances applicable to running an entertainment spot. They said, "When we have determined our damages as a result of this, we will submit a bill to the Town for that amount."

According to an estimate given by Brunswick Toyota, the cost of repairing the damage to their 1986 Celica would be $1,332.

Town Manager Lynch said Bethel police try to work with the Inns so that they police the parking habits of their patrons.

Chairman Jordrey said, "Obviously we need to do something...to improve the situation."

Dick Rasor was also in to talk with the selectmen about the statewide project called Maine Street '90. Mr. Rasor said it's a way to bring the state's communities together, individually and severally. He said, "It's a totally private sector thing," designed to foster projects that will promote a feeling of community.

The board endorsed the idea and resolved to have the town participate. Any groups or individuals with ideas for projects should contact Mr. Rasor, at the Bethel Inn, 824-2175.

The Chamber of Commerce asked the board, through a letter, to place an article on the Town Meeting warrant to appropriate $500 for Christmas decorations in town. The board denied the request.

Selectwoman Doen said the article would polarize Town Meeting again. Chairman Jordrey said he didn't want to see the town take on more responsibilities and that the Christmas tree and common lighting should remain a private sector, volunteer effort.

For his part, Selectman Haines thought the lights were being left up—and on—too long. "Why this three or four months deal? If I had my way they'd be limited to 60 days."

In other action, the board approved a gross budget of $1,096,986 (a net of $939,982) and passed it on to the Budget Committee. (See last week's Citizen for a discussion of this proposed FY90 budget.)

The board accepted a donation from Bethel Furniture Store of $1,500 for shade trees, to be planted in memory of former selectman (and former Bethel Furniture official) Maurice Roy.

The board accepted the resignation of Debra Dohrmann from the Planning Board and directed the town manager to send a letter of appreciation for her work. (The Dohrmanns have a new baby.)

The selectmen set the date for town elections as Tuesday, June 13; the date for annual Town Meeting will be June 14. The deadline for presenting articles for the Town Meeting warrant is April 3.

By CONSTANCE BROADBENT

Dear Ann:

We enjoyed our visit with you and the folks and again we say "congratulations on your engagement!" In spite of all our teasing, we're really happy for you. Whether or not you can maintain your calm and/or find enough distractions for the next 17 months remains to be seen. I've never met a prospective bride so organized, so far in advance. Your September 1st next wedding seems so far away...perhaps you could get into woodworking, or maybe boat-building...how about small engine repair?

Our trip to Massachusetts was a whirlwind. We had a great time at the retirement party (our primary purpose for traveling), saw lots of old friends, including Wynan and Audrey Johnson, who had hosted the Hostessmans for a couple of nights before the shindig. And from Friday until Tuesday we brunched and lunched with just about all the feed and sild, spun out of control, and came ever so close to smashing into us. We were powerless to do more than creep forward at never more than three or four miles an hour, watching all mirrors for signs of impending doom. It was truly a helpless feeling to know that control of our own vehicle (which, by the way, had all of 500-and-some miles on its spanking new odometer) was not enough to keep us from harm. And then suddenly, at the bridge over the railroad, the road was dry. We were saved. And by the next morning the stomach knots loosened.

Meanwhile, back in West Bethel, our minister and wife had their own horror-on-wheels. Norman and Betty Rust were turning into the churchyard on Sunday morning, and their car caught in a freak ice-up on Route 95 on the stretch between Randolph and Canton. For those few miles we were held captive on a super slick highway as cars all around us slipped and slid, spun out of control, and came ever so close to smashing into us. We were powerless to do more than creep forward at never more than three or four miles an hour, watching all mirrors for signs of impending doom. It was truly a helpless feeling to know that control of our own vehicle (which, by the way, had all of 500-and-some miles on its spanking new odometer) was not enough to keep us from harm. And then suddenly, at the bridge over the railroad, the road was dry. We were saved. And by the next morning the stomach knots loosened.

After the communion died down, and once the ambulance sped away, the remaining parishioners gathered in the church to sing themselves calm and to pray their minister and his wife well. Laura Elvin was disappointed that the accident interrupted her chance to show off her new sister, Andrea Lynne. It was to have been Andrea's first outing to church since her birth a few short weeks ago. Hopefully she'll reappear this week.

I guess I'm just trying to make you focus on the moment, Ann. Look around you, check out your place in space, and take pleasure in the "now." My talking teabag said it best: "Life is what happens while you're making other plans." Oh, that reminds me. We also stopped to order your fill-in china pieces. Maybe when your parents come to visit, it will have arrived.

percent because of heavy alcohol use.

No 8th-graders were identified as currently being heavy alcohol or marijuana users, but 2 percent were considered to be at risk because of their use of multiple drugs.

Drug use by the remainder of the students was classified as occasional, light or negligible.

None of the students taking the survey acknowledged ever having used a needle to inject drugs.

Students appeared to have no problem getting access to drugs. Asked what drugs were "fairly easy" or "very easy" to get, 96 percent of the seniors said alcohol was readily available, 79 percent marijuana, 84 percent inhalants, 55 percent stimulants, 49 percent "downers," 43 percent cocaine and 20 percent heroin.

These figures are very similar to the responses of seniors nationwide, the report noted. They reflect the perceived availability of drugs in the area, not necessarily the availability of the drugs in the school.

Very few students (only 2 or 3 percent) indicated they used drugs on the way to school or while in school. Seniors said they used drugs most often at parties (79 percent), at night with friends (97 percent), while driving around (40 percent) or at home (80 percent). The comparable figures for 8th-graders were 21, 27, 8 and 35 percent.

Board members had made few comments on the lengthy (43-page) report, and Ms. Chapman volunteered to return when they had had time to review its contents more thoroughly.

Board Chairman Merton Brown did say, however, that the report revealed "a lot of things really shocking to me."

THIS WEEK AT THE

Moses Mason House

The Bethel Historical Society has received a photocopy of a very unusual booklet published in Portland in 1856 and titled "A Brief Historical Sketch of the Life and Sufferings of Leonard Trask, the Wonderful Invalid." Trask wrote the booklet in the hope of raising money to support himself and his wife. Following an accident in 1833 his chin gradually came to press against his chest to the extent that it was difficult to eat and chew. Today this condition would have brought sympathy and understanding as well as medical help. But in the 1850s Trask's suffering must have been great in addition to the public humiliation he suffered through no fault of his own.

Born in Hartford in 1806, the same year that Oxford County was created, he spent his formative years in that town. At age 21 his first job on his own was in the town of Carthage, where he worked making bricks at $11.50 per month. Following this employment he returned to Hartford in the fall of 1828 and took a job building 100 rods of wall for $109. He also bought a pair of oxen at this time for $50 and completed his wall-building project in eight weeks, working "almost incessantly, day and night." He then sold his oxen and went to logging in the town of Byron, working there for several months at $12 per month. Following this, he traveled to Milbury, Mass., where his father grew up, to work for an uncle. The next year he labored on a farm for $18 per month.

Having obtained some savings, he returned to Maine, purchased "some wild land in the new and sparsely settled town of Peru." He then built a barn, followed by a house. He married and prospered in farming.

About 1833, he was riding on horseback through a neighboring town when "a luckless hog in the highway," fleeing from danger "rushed directly under the horse's feet." This frightened the horse, which threw Trask to the ground—the full force of the fall being upon his neck and shoulders. From then on his troubles began, with excruciating pain and the gradual curving of his spine until his chin met chest. He went from a six-foot one-inch, able-bodied man of 199 pounds to one standing four feet 10 inches and weighing about 124 pounds.

Trask attempted to carry on his farm but the disease known as "bloody murrain" decimated his stock. He attempted to recoup his fortunes by working in a logging camp but the camp burned. Several nights Trask and the other men sought shelter under trees from the wind and the cold. The frigid temperatures only worsened his condition, but he managed to complete the winter's work.

During the following spring he sought medical assistance from a number of doctors, but no one was able to help. He endured everything from bleeding to blistering without relief. In the meantime, his fortunes declined. His grotesque appearance scared women, children and horses and made it difficult to earn much of a living with the limited amount he could do. By the time this booklet was written in the 1850s, he had no power to move his head up and down or to right or left since his neck and back had become perfectly rigid.

He wrote that he was advised by some to "throw himself upon the town," since such a man should not labor and that "such pauperism could not be considered a disgrace." Trask dismissed this course since he could not bear to see his wife, as was the custom in that time, put on the "pauper's black" at the annual town meeting and "struck off to the lowest bidder at public outcry." He also vetoed the notion of selling himself to circuses and road shows as a curiosity or freak, but instead expressed the hope that this booklet would bring some income as well as understanding of his plight.

One reads this remarkable document today with the view of admiration for his courage in dealing with great adversity. Doubtless many of us living today would be able to bear our misfortunes with as much fortitude and conviction as Trask exhibited.

This booklet is available to those interested in the Society's Eva Bean

A request for a donation to the new scholarship fund being set up by the state Grange Agriculture Committee was turned over to the Pomona Scholarship Committee. This scholarship is being set up to assist Grange youth going into the field of agriculture.

Cards were signed for Albert Lord, who lost his father, and for Francis and Hazel Conant, Bill and Gladys Mahar and Don and Phyllis Dyer.

The Lecturer's program began with the address of welcome by Paris Grange Master, Marian Bennett. Richard Fell, Pomona Master, gave the response. All joined in singing, "When Irish Eyes are Smiling." Mavis Lane read, "Count Your Blessings," followed by piano solos by Althea Fish.

Lynda LaBree led a skit with Wayne, Sherman, Randy and Linda Jack, Charlie Clifford and Elaine Brewer.

Mystery packages were won by Mario Gowell, Elizabeth Foster and Rose Carpenter. The attendance drawing was won by Lewis Bisbee.

Winners of the auction to benefit the chairlift donation were Lynda LaBree, Velma Laughton, and Lucy Robbins.

Pam Buckley spoke on the upcoming C.W.A. contests.

Carl and Lettie Brooks entertained with a skit, and Clyde Whitney read a humorous report.

Dot Canwell, accompanied by Richard Fell on harmonica, played the piano and whistled several selections.

Marian Bennett read the closing thought and all joined in singing the closing song.

LAST CHARTER MEMBER—Alanson Cummings, 91, shown here with his wife Fannie, is the only surviving charter member of the Jackson-Silver American Legion Post 68. A second charter member, Arthur Wyman, passed away last week. Mr. Cummings has belonged to the Legion since its founding in 1919.

LOCKE MILLS LEGION CELEBRATES 70TH YEAR

The Jackson-Silver Post celebrated its 70th birthday last Thursday night, at the Legion Hall. There were 50 members and guests present. A delicious New England boiled dinner was served by members of the Auxiliary, with expenses shared equally with members of the Post.

Visiting members of other Legion Posts in the district were: Robert Moore, Commander Post #24; Robert Beck, Past Commander Post 199; Joe Taylor, Commander Post 81; John Kezal, V.A.R. of 2nd Dist.; Michael Cocca, Post 24 of Rumford accompanied by Mrs. Cocca.

Also visiting members and officials of the Ladies Auxiliary included Carolyn Brooks, Department Chairman of Education and Scholarship of the State Auxiliary who was seated at the head table beside Post Commander Brian Strickland. Other officials of the Auxiliary were: Dorothy Flagg, 2nd District President; Annie Kezal, Alternate to the President of 2nd Dist.; Gabriella Moore also of the 2nd Dist.; and Annie Beck, President of the Oxford County Auxiliary.

The Oxford County American Legion will meet at the Legion Hall at Locke Mills, April 18, at 7 p.m. At this meeting delegates for the Maine State Convention will be chosen.

There will be a Girl's State tea sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Rumford Post on April 9 at 2 p.m. The Auxiliary will furnish dessert.

There was a time of sadness at the Anniversary Supper, for just the night before, Tuesday, March 15, a charter member of the Post, Arthur Wyman, passed away. This leaves Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Cummings the two charter members left of the Legion Post and Auxiliary. The Post Charter was draped in the honor of Comrade Wyman and a very fine eulogy was given by fellow Comrade and Charter member, Alanson Cummings.

Members of the Legion Post and Auxiliary met separately for a business meeting at the close of festivities. It was reported at the meeting that the State Health Inspector inspected the Post facilities and indicated minor repairs that needed to be made to meet the State requirements. It was voted to give donations to the Paralyzed Veterans of America, Home of the Little Wanderers, Waterville, and it was voted to sponsor a local boy to the Boy's State, which is

By VIVA WHITMAN

A lovely sunny morning this March 16 and I have washing started. Seems good to have the temperature above freezing so one can hang clothes outside and dry them in the good smell of fresh air. Did some cloth the other day and got it ready to have to sew on. I always wash it first and get the dust out of it because of my allergies. Always have to think of what will start asthma spells for me, and that is one of the many things.

Haven't done as much as I would have liked to do lately because of a bad cold I am trying hard to get rid of but keep busy doing little things. Last Friday we went to town to get groceries and do a few errands. In the evening, Russell and Peggy went to Mechanic Falls with some of the girls from Locke Mills to the dance. As usual I stayed home and kept myself company.

Saturday was a busy day for Peggy as sister Laura came for a permanent and it takes time to give one. Laura had her granddaughter, Mandy, with her. After the perm was done they came down to visit for a little while. Hadn't seen them for some time. In the evening, Peggy went to Oxford with some of the girls to the dance at the Grange Hall. Richard Felt and Company furnished the music. Guess they had a good time from what Peggy said.

On Sunday Peggy went to West Bethel to visit her daughter and family and celebrate her birthday with them. It was rather stormy but didn't amount to anything, for which we are grateful.

Don't remember whether it was Monday or Tuesday that Peggy took a lady to Lewiston to see the doctor. She said she did some errands while there in the city.

Seems as though she has had to go somewhere about every day this week. Wednesday was my day to go to North Bridgton to see Dr. Jealous, so Peggy drove me, as usual. We had a few errands in town to do and, as it was getting late, we went to Bonanza to have lunch. Russell wanted to take Peggy there for a birthday gift anyway so made it that day. We had all we could eat and a very reasonable price, which is great. We really enjoyed our meal there.

How I wish I was as lively as the squirrels out back. The little red ones especially are so much fun to watch as they scurry about. I have watched them a lot and one day discovered that one of them was carrying corn and hiding it in holes in the snow. He or she would come get a kernel or two of corn and run like mad up back and put the corn in a hole and jump it down with its feet as some running back for more. I had wondered what it was doing running up back and then down to the feeder again and back and forth as fast as it could go and finally got to see just what it was up to. What amazing little animals they are. Destructive also. They are trying to build a nest out in the shed out back and Russell is trying to discourage them. Don't know at this point who will win out, but suspect Russell may. He can be very persistent.

I am surprised that we haven't had more different birds come as yet but haven't—but the chickadees are still coming, as well as the nuthatches, and we have several mourning doves that come regularly as well as our gray squirrels. I think the animals and birds entertain us more than the TV does.

JACKSON-SILVER CELEBRATION—Local and state legionnaires met at the Jackson-Silver American Legion Post 68 last week to celebrate the 70th anniversary of the Legion's founding. Some of the officers attending were: seated, from left, Robert Beck, past commander of Post 199; Annie Beck, Oxford County president; Ann Kegal, 2nd alternate district president; Dorothy Flagg, 2nd district president; Gabriella Moore, 2nd district chaplain; Mary Lyon, president of Unit 68; standing, John Kegal, V.A.R. commander, 2nd district; Post 24; Brian Strickland, commander of Post 68; Fannie Cummings, past district president; Alanson Cummings, past Oxford County Commander; Robert Moore, commander Post 24; and Michael Cocca, past commander of Post 84.

Greenwood St. Hillbillies 4-H Club was cancelled because of illness last week. David Small and his brother John, from Kennebunkport, called on the Lovejoys recently. Other callers were Vello Pike and Priscilla Brett.

Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mack, along with Mary and Justin, called on Tammy Farnum.

West Paris Grange will have their next dance April 1. What a nice April Fool's day that will be. Watch out for funny antics, but come and have a good time.

Marcia Baxter spent last weekend in Skowhegan visiting her family.

Hope everyone is getting anxious for spring to arrive and will take care and not get one of these colds like I have. It takes forever to get rid of it once it hits you, so don't go near bugs.

Growth management about to begin in Newry

On Monday, April 3, at 7 p.m., in the town office, Newry will begin its growth management process at a joint meeting of the Zoning Committee, Planning Board, Board of Appeals, Code Enforcement Officer, Board of Selectmen and Jim Haskell of Haskell Associates.

This meeting is to familiarize them with the proposed work program and get their initial input regarding project goals, objectives, and the major community issues to be addressed. Citizens of Newry are urged to attend this meeting.

to meet in June.

Other business was a vote to allow the Maine Riders to use a room for meetings on the first and third Sundays of the month. It was further voted that comrade Herbert Lyon be given the material to repair cracks in the dry wall of the building and that the Post birthday gift given by the Ladies Auxiliary be used to erect a gate at the entrance of the yard and to purchase gravel needed for the yard.

Blood drive at Telstar Friday, March 31st

The Red Cross reminds everyone that spring is a time of new beginnings. Donate blood, the organization urges, and share a priceless resource with ill members of the community giving them an opportunity for good health. Your donation takes a small portion of time, and you will feel content knowing you may have helped sustain the life of a community member who has leukemia, heart disease or anemia.

To meet the needs of hospitalized patients in the Northeast Region, the American Red Cross Blood Services must collect approximately 300,000 units of blood annually.

If you are in good health, 18 years of age or older (17 years old with a signed American Red Cross paternal/guardian consent form), weigh at least 110 pounds, have no history of hepatitis, have no history of exposure to the AIDS virus, and are not in a risk group for AIDS, you may be eligible to donate blood.

Call 824-2138 to schedule an appointment at the Bethel Area Community Blood Drive, to be held at Telstar Regional High School on Friday, March 31, from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., in the auditorium.

Notes from the Woodstock Historical Society

Following is an inviting scene:
"One took in the sunlight of the sea table... a muffin dish, polished silver girdling in the firelight, wedges of buttered toast spread with what looked like anchovy paste, a plate of little cakes... a silver teapot."

The next meeting of the historical society will feature Steve Crone and his lamias. He also plans to show slides.

teaching the children to understand reading through writing—that is the secret.

Although Mrs. Salway's pupils are only in kindergarten, many of them can already read some difficult words.

"If the children are doing a unit on dinosaurs they will read about, write about and play with dinosaurs," Mrs. Salway explained.

By using inventive spelling—in which the children write down what they think the word sounds like—the children are already learning how to read some words, and many pupils have taught themselves a number of new words through this method, she said.

Both Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Salway said they are very excited about the conference, and they think it will be a great chance to pick up some new ideas for the classroom and to share what they've learned about the Breadloaf approach.

By DONNA A. RICHARD

Fourth-grade Social Studies classes are celebrating March as Women's History Month by choosing a biography or autobiography of a woman who has influenced history, on which to report. The list of possible choices for the students went on and on and on. Many students were surprised by the length of the list and had never heard of some very famous women. This lesson will be a valuable learning experience.

Recently stories by three authors in Mrs. O'Meara's 3rd Grade classroom were selected to be published by "Broad Net"—a computer network that collects children's writing from across the nation into a book.

Congratulations go to Tabetha Mason, Kate Nickerson, and Erin Kavanagh. Here's a recent story from Mrs. Gould's 1st Grade class.

Super Mario Brothers
The bees jump up from underneath Mario. Mario has to look out for the creatures. The creatures are Piranha Plant, Buzzy Beetle, Cooper Trooper, Cheep Cheep, Blobber and La-Kegla.

Denny McLeod
Six students from Miss Newcomb's 5th Grade class entertained their parents and classmates with a short play they had written based on the book "Freedom Crossing," which they had just finished reading. The cast included Caitlin Kavanagh, Brandi Brooks, Amanda Syko, Nate McVey, Leah Bonema, and Samantha Poland. Thank you to Nancy Grover for coming to the play and video taping it for the class.

Mrs. Cohen's Kindergarten students had a fun week celebrating St. Patrick's Day. They wrote stories about "If I found a pot of gold."

Miss Newcomb announced that another year of cross-country skiing has come to an end with the arrival of warmer weather. The program involved 74 students from 2nd through 5th Grade. The program ran smoothly with the able assistance and support by a group of 14 volunteers. Children who continued their participation throughout the program will be receiving a certificate later this spring.

SAD #44 SPELLING BEE CHAMPS Angela Szente and Jessica Reynolds received their awards from teacher Rodney Abbott after the recent bee, held at the middle school.

Andover 6th-grader wins district spelling bee

The annual SAD #44 district-wide spelling bee was held March 8, in the Telstar auditorium. Fifteen finalists from Grades 6, 7, and 8—from Andover Elementary School, Woodstock Elementary School and Telstar Middle School—challenged each other in the competition. The 15 finalists were: Angela Szente, Andover Elementary School; Lori Davis, Woodstock Elementary School; and Jessica Reynolds, Brian Larson, Adrienne Reynolds, Phoebe Hausman-Rogers, Dustin Syko, Robin Palmer, Chris Howe, Tina Coudig, Meredith Otten, Terri Applin, Tracy Bachelder, Ryan Wheeler and Jennie Cooley from Telstar Middle School.

The competition climaxed as Telstar's Jessica Reynolds attempted unsuccessfully to spell the word "vaudeville." Andover's Angela Szente spelled the word correctly and won the bee by correctly spelling the next word, "willes." Angela is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Szente, of Andover. Angela's name will be submitted to the Maine Sunday Telegram Spelling Bee 1989 County Governors.

The 31st Annual Sunday Telegram Spelling Bee will be held on Saturday, April 8, at Bates College in Lewiston, at the Olin Arts Center.

Could skiers shine in national competition

Gould freshman Jason Walz, of Fitzwilliam, N.H., and senior Mike Wilson of Minneapolis, Minn., both posted top-15 finishes in cross-country and jumping at the Junior Olympics, held last week in Minnesota.

In competition against the leading 15- and 16-year-old boys from throughout the United States, Walz placed 18th in the 10K classical race, 18th in the 15K freestyle, and had the 11th fastest time in the relay. He leaves the Junior Olympics ranked 18th nationally in his age group, and fourth in New England. Walz also finished fourth in the New England Prep School Championships, held at Gould Academy on Feb. 22, and was a member of the Gould Academy relay team that won the overall Prep School Championships.

Also competing against the top juniors in the nation, senior Mike Wilson took an eighth place medal in the 40-meter jumping event, a ninth place medal in the combined cross-country and jumping event, and a 14th in the 60-meter open. A former downhill racer who only last year learned to ski jump, Wilson also won the New England Prep School Championships last month. He plans to continue jumping in college, and to train at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Lake Placid this summer.

The Gould Academy nordic team winds up an especially strong season this year, marked by winning the New England Prep School Championships, and senior Ben Michaud's gold medal in the Biathlon World Team Trials.

Attention parents with children to be enrolled in Kindergarten next year. SAD #17 is making some changes in the Kindergarten registration, screening and even the first week's attendance in September. An informational meeting will be held at Oxford Hills High School, in the cafeteria, on Thursday, March 23. If you are unable to attend, call our school, 674-2332, and we will see that you receive necessary information.

Kindergarten children are currently working hard to become members of their Tiger Club. Membership requires responsible classroom behavior. Not only does this activity promote appropriate behavior, but it also enhances self-esteem. When we behave well, we feel better about ourselves. Brandon Twitchell is the first official tiger.

On March 17, the Kindergarten and 1st Grade made potato-head leprechauns in honor of St. Patrick's Day. The 1st graders are enjoying a new math game called Puddles. This is to help them learn the process of subtraction. Pictures of puddles are drawn on their papers, numbers are taken away from one puddle and put in another and then a number sentence is written to figure out subtraction.

Grades 2 and 3 are wrapping up their dinosaur projects. A parade and party was held on Monday. Refreshments included meat for the omnivorous dinosaurs and vegetables for the herbivorous dinosaurs.

In writing class, 3rd-graders have been brainstorming ideas about time machines. They talked about materials to make the machines and then began writing about taking a journey back in

Pancake breakfast at Congregational Church

On Sunday, March 26, there will be an Easter Pancake breakfast at the West Parish Congregational Church, Church Street, Bethel. Serving will begin at 7:30 a.m. and last until 9:30 a.m. Donations will be welcomed.

4-H HORSE GROUP FORMS

4-H has a new horse club in Bryant Pond. Lisa McKeen Bennett, Judy Keene, and Heather Vail are the new leaders. Anyone age 6-19 interested in horses can come and join this new club. Members will learn all about the basic care of horses, riding, and showing, etc. 4-Hers have the opportunity to take part in club activities, county clinics, workshops, programs, and shows.

If you are between the ages of 6 and 19, own a horse, and would like to learn more, contact Susan Jennings, at the University of Maine Cooperative Extension Office, at 743-6322.

time. Visiting the time of the dinosaurs was one popular theme, but other ideas emerged as well.

Grades 4 and 5 participated in the fifth scheduled elementary multi-league on Thursday. Six problems were tackled in the allotted time of 25 minutes. They were solvable, but took a lot of thinking.

Grade 6 supplied the artist-of-the-week, Vanessa Bolstridge. Her project was designing a possible record album cover. The 8th-graders held a combined pizza and going-away party in honor of Joseph Webb. Joe will be undergoing surgery at Children's Hospital, in Boston, and will be out of school for some time. We wish him well and will be sending him cards and letters, and we will be waiting to hear news of his progress.

and biathlon director Kirk Siegel recently returned from the World University Games in Sofia, Bulgaria, where they were selected to coach the U.S. cross country and biathlon teams respectively. Ben Michaud, of Bethel, finished second in the 10K junior race of the U.S. Biathlon National Championships Friday in Royal Gorge, Calif., securing his position as next season's top-ranked junior biathlete. Ben skied well and hit eight out of 10 targets, improving on his seventh place finish in Wednesday's 15K competition.

Newry

By AMY HANSCOM

Church services were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Wight, Sunday, March 12. The title of Pastor Hanscom's message was "The two sinners," with Scripture readings from St. Luke, 16: 1-3 and 11-21 and St. Luke, 18: 10-14.

The Mothers Club met March 13 with 14 members present. The meeting was opened by Vice President Betsy Clark, in the absence of Cindy Moxey. Gilberte Seelye read a prayer. The treasurer's and secretary's reports were read and accepted. Sunshine Lady Olive Anderson reported on cards sent to shut-ins. It was voted to try to get someone to come to speak on drugs—preferably someone who has overcome the problem. Anyone interested in coming is asked to contact June Swan, at 824-2124.

The mystery prize was won by Cindy Moxey. Some Planning Board members and Brooks Morton, chairman of the Zoning Committee, and Selectman Steve Wight spoke on "Maine Street, '90" and showed video tapes of improvements in other towns. The state would furnish some equipment, but volunteer help from town would be needed.

The next Mothers Club meeting will be April 10 at 7:30 p.m. at the municipal building. June Swan, Olive Anderson and Mary Tripp will serve on the refreshment committee.

Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Thelma Lowery, Eleanor Davis, Gilberte Seelye, Sylvia Wight and Beatrice Lowell were in South Paris bowling March 15. Betsy Clark was high on both single and triple. After bowling the ladies had lunch at Bonanza.

On Monday, April 3, at 7 p.m., in the town office, Newry will begin its growth management process at a joint meeting of the Zoning Committee, Planning Board, Board of Appeals, Code Enforcement Officer, Board of Selectmen and Jim Haskell, of Haskell Associates. This meeting is to familiarize them with the proposed work program and get their initial input regarding project goals, objectives and the major community issues to be addressed. Citizens of Newry are urged to attend this meeting. Your interest and participation will insure that future land use management in Newry is planned properly.

FOLK DANCING IN SOUTH PARIS
Beginning Thursday, March 30, 7-9 p.m. (and the second and fourth Thursday of each month), there will be folk dancing in the Community Room of the South Paris branch of the Norway Savings Bank.

Beginners are welcome and a partner is not necessary. A $1 donation will be requested. For further information, call 743-9252 or 674-2112.

SECOND THOUGHTS? Telstar sophomore Vicki Hutchins appears a bit apprehensive as she prepares for her class' Outward Bound winter camping trip. But all 44 students who set out on the trip finished in fine style—along the way enjoying much nicer weather than last year's campers did during their five days and four nights in the wilds. Twenty-eight students in this year's sophomore class opted out of the trip, instead spending the week "In Bound" at the school working on various projects. (Photo by Audrey Thibodeau)

NOTES FROM

Evans Notch District

White Mountain National Forest

In the White Mountain National Forest Management Plan, the importance of maintaining openings in the forest cover as a means of providing diversity in wildlife habitat is recognized. Approximately 90 percent of our woodland wildlife species use various kinds of openings to satisfy at least some of their food and cover requirements.

Forest Plan guidelines called for approximately 3 percent of lands classified for timber harvesting activity to be maintained as permanent wildlife openings. On the Evans Notch Ranger District that would be about 1,300 acres of permanently maintained openings ranging in size from one to 15 acres. Currently the district has about 200 acres in openings that are scheduled for maintenance on a regular basis.

Types of openings include apple or cherry, grassy openings, and brushy openings. These areas need to be maintained every three to five years to keep the desired vegetative types. There are a variety of methods of accomplishing this, by hand with hand tools or power tools, mechanically with tractor mounted brush hogs, chemically with approved herbicides, and with prescribed fire.

The Evans Notch Ranger District has begun using prescribed burning as an efficient and cost effective means of maintaining some wildlife openings in a grass/forbs stage. In the spring of 1988 four openings totaling 11 acres were treated with fire with very good results. This year there are 38 acres in nine different openings around the district that are scheduled for maintenance. The openings range in size from one to seven acres and will be burned in accordance with approved burning plans.

Each plan specifies the ranges of air temperatures, humidity, and wind speed and direction that are acceptable for each area. Sufficient personnel and equipment is on site to ensure that the fire stays within the desired area. In addition, some areas will be available for cooperative training exercises with state and local forest fire control agencies.

Anyone interested in receiving more information about prescribed burning or commenting on the prescribed burning program should contact the District Ranger, Evans Notch Ranger District, White Mountain National Forest, RFD#2 Box 2270, Bethel 04217, Telephone (207) 824-2124.

FROM THE
Bethel Town Office

This week's column will be devoted to discussing the Fiscal Year 1990 (July 1, 1989-June 30, 1990) Town budget.

The proposed FY90 gross budget is $1,086,484 or a 21 percent increase over FY89. The estimated net FY90 budget (gross budget less revenues and carried-forwards) is $939,480 or a 27 percent increase over the FY89 net budget of $741,040.

The bulk of the increase is due to the $102,750 request for hauling trash out of town. If it were not for this request, the increase in the gross FY90 budget would be 10 percent.

The budget that is being presented this year will allow us to accomplish the following:

- Expand police protection to nearly 24-hour coverage by adding a third full-time police officer. This will be the first net gain in the number of full-time town employees in over four years.

The request for a third full-time officer is reflective of the overwhelming June 1987 Town Meeting vote to retain our own Police Department.

For a long time Bethel has lagged behind other similar sized communities in the amount of dollars spent on police protection. To illustrate this statement the following comparison has been prepared:

Town	80 pop. Full-time	P.D. Budget
Fryeburg	2,715	$121,000
Mech. Falls	2,616	$87,500
Dixfield	2,329	$74,000
Rockport	2,147	$152,000
Thomaston	2,500	$124,410
Bethel	2,340	$93,404

- Expand the life of the landfill by hauling up to 60 percent of our rubbish out of town.

On Saturday and Sunday, April 1 and 2, Baker's Art Gallery and Frame Centre will conduct its first workshop for those interested in learning basic and advanced techniques in watercolor painting.

Nordia Kay, of Marblehead, Mass., will be instructing the class, limited to 12 students. Her instructions will include drawing, composition, color selection, choice of brushes, paints, paper and personal attention to each individual in attendance. She will also do a watercolor demonstration.

A complete list of supplies and registration fees required to take the course will be sent upon request by contacting the Gallery owners, Jo and Romeo Baker, RFD 2, Box 2090, Bethel, 04217. Tel. 824-2088.

In summary, the Town's finances are in pretty good shape. This is due in part because over the past four years the Town has been run more like a business than just another governmental bureaucracy and because the voters and the selectmen have been both encouraging and supportive of our efforts to generate more non-tax revenues and to institute long-needed reforms, such as requiring escrow accounts for individuals who dig up our streets. Now the people who dig up our streets are financially responsible for restoring the street to nearly its original condition and not all of the taxpayers.

In closing, both the selectmen and I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate Ralph Hall on the occasion of his 97th birthday. As our oldest citizen, Mr. Hall is the holder of the Town's Borden Cane. This was presented to him in 1987.

Gardeners get advice on farmers' market

On March 9, a farmers' market meeting was held at Telstar Regional High School. Along with Frank Wertheim, of the Oxford County Extension Service, was one full-time farmer and eight "home gardeners."

Charlie Gould, of Freeport, spoke to the group. He's a retired Extension Service agent, has helped most of the farmers' markets in Maine, and been involved with the Brunswick farmers' market for many years.

He had many ideas, suggestions and tales to tell. The key to a good successful farmers' market is fresh, local products sold in an attractive way. And have plenty of products to sell on the market day, he suggested.

The group discussed possible locations, when to open the market, what day(s) to hold the market and formed a four-member steering committee. Some planning of plantings was discussed to insure plenty of products for the whole season.

It is hoped that the farmers' market will have a variety of fresh produce, jams, jellies and relishes, meat products, dairy products, herbs, and flowers. Opening day will be mid- or late-June and the market will open weekly through September or October.

In order to make the market a success, more members are needed, particularly full-time farmers. The next meeting will be held at Telstar, March 30, at 8:30 p.m. Anyone interested in selling produce, baked goods, maple syrup, preserves, livestock, or agricultural whatever is encouraged to attend. For more information call Jeanne (839-3567) or Kate (839-3217).

'Pole, Paddle and Paw'
participants get ready

The local fools are already preparing their canoes, lifejackets, skinny skis and snowshoes.

Saturday, April 1, is just over a week away, and lots of sports enthusiasts are looking forward to one of the most grueling—certainly the most entertaining—events on the local sports calendar.

The occasion will be the annual Pole, Paddle and Paw Race from Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center, in Newry. This year the race is being sponsored by Maine's own Portland Lager.

Steve Wight, organizer of the annual frolic, says, "This event is designed as a celebration of the close of the winter season and transition into spring."

For those unfamiliar with the event, the race is a triathlon, composed of skiing, canoeing and snowshoeing. It must be run by a two-member team, with both members participating in each event.

The teams leave the ski center en masse, skiing two miles to the Artist's Covered Bridge. There they drop their skis, put on lifejackets, and get into canoes for the exciting 2½-mile ride down the swift-moving Sunday River. At the end of the paddle, the participants put on snowshoes, which have been stashed in the canoes, and run back up to the starting point.

Those interested in participating should contact the Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center, at RFD 2 Box 1888, Bethel 04217, or call, 824-2410. Ann Speth is handling registrations.

Registration on race day will be from 10:30 a.m. till noon. Participants must supply their own equipment, including an approved personal flotation device. The entry fee per team is $25, which pays for a souvenir T-shirt plus post-race refreshments.

CHURCH SCHOOL OPEN HOUSE

The Forestdale Church School and Junior Academy, located on Perkins Valley Road, in South Woodstock, will hold a visitors' day today (March 22) for those interested in attending the church school next year.

Anyone who is interested in visiting should contact Miss Burrell, at 674-2924. The Forestdale church school was first opened in 1923 and is operated by the Christian denomination of Seventh-day Adventists in connection with the Northern New England Conference Office of Education and the State of Maine. The school maintains 10 grades in three separate classrooms, with three school teachers and auxiliary personnel.

Although the denomination commends the public schools and the dedicated teachers for the fine work they do, the church understands that with the diversity of religious beliefs, it isn't possible to inject religion into a secular classroom without great difficulty. Adventists seek the extra "R," religion, as a part of the educational process and attempt to make the Bible and the Biblical world-view the center of all teaching and study. The local school is fully accredited with the state in operating standards. Finances are met through tuition and local members' support.

Registration next month for fall Kindergarten

Early registration in SAD #44 has been set for the week of April 10. Specific dates and sites for each community will be announced at a later date.

Any parent who has a child who will be five years of age on or before Oct. 15 should contact the local school with the following information: the child's name, birthdate, and parent's name and mailing address.

Parents are reminded that they will need a copy of the child's birth certificate, to be left with SAD #44 administrators, as well as the child's immunization record from a doctor, clinic, or nurse.

Call Christine Cole, R.N., district nurse, at 824-2582, if you have any questions.

By CAROLYN COLBY

It is with sadness that I write of the death of another dear friend and neighbor. Irene Wilson passed away March 14. Even though she hardly left her driveway for the last few years, Irene touched the lives of many people—probably more than most of the rest of us have.

We will miss our visits with her discussing everything under the sun and solving the problems of the world. Full of wit and wisdom, Irene was a collector of amusing stories and tried to end each conversation with a laugh. The birds and critters that she has fed will also miss Irene watching them from her kitchen window. She reminded me of St. Francis of Assisi, as she fed the birds, squirrels, a little fieldmouse, stray cats and even a skunk.

Our sympathy to her family. May all their memories be happy ones. Katrina Lowe was down from North Conway, N.H., Thursday evening, for Irene's visiting hours.

Mrs. Lowe went to visit at Ledgeview Nursing Home in West Paris Wednesday morning. She and Bob went to Berlin later in the day.

Leah Deegan cooked corned beef and vegetables for the boiled dinner of the American Legion Auxiliary this week. A boiled dinner for a crowd requires lots of pots and time, but I'll bet it was worth it.

We had a thundershower, sleet and peized hail this Saturday morning. According to weather lore, "Thunder in March betokeneth a fruitful year." The scant snow cover tells me it is apt to be dry this summer. We'll see.

Ray, Janice and Patrick Harrington are really enjoying their visit with Tom and Ruth Harrington. They have taken Ruth to many places of interest and another week will hardly be enough to do all they would like. Tom and Ruth will be returning to Germany on March 27.

Mrs. Andrea Wing is in Norway hospital for heart surgery. She was operated upon the past week.

Esther Davis and Olive were at Livermore Falls for visiting hours for Miriam Howard who passed away recently.

Patsy Tibbetts took supper with Esther and Olive Davis Saturday evening.

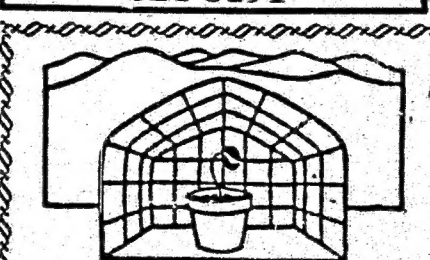

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brooks and Olive Davis attended the Historical Society meeting at the primary school in Bryant Pond Saturday evening. Lettie and Carl had the program for the evening. The speaker was Connie Hindman, from Bethel, who talked on her work with blind and deaf people, which was real interesting.

The Willing Workers meeting for Sunday at Andrea Wing's was cancelled because of sickness. The Easter basket tickets are being made and are on sale now. Miriam Morgan has got them out. We hope all will try to win the Easter basket. Thank you.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Hathaway went to Boston Friday and to Cambridge for the weekend, which they spent with Helen Brown. While there they took in a flower show Saturday, returning home Sunday. This was Joyce Hathaway's birthday present from her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Denis Fortier. Joyce's birthday was March 9.

Mr. and Mrs. Steven Fisher, of Fort Worth, Texas, flew to Massachusetts and transferred to a bus arriving in Maine 6 p.m., Monday night, to visit her aunt, Esther Davis, this week. On their arrival Patricia Davis Tibbetts and Esther Davis met them at the bus terminal and they all joined with these relatives and ate out at Marco's Restaurant in Lewiston. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Johnson and baby Ryan, Jerry Shorey, Jackie Tibbetts, Tim Kenough, Esther Davis and Patricia Tibbetts and Mr. and Mrs. Steven Fisher.
